At Kooks, our goal is to provide you with a range of hardworking knives that can stand the test of time. Right from the choice of the steel to the manufacturing process, to the work force carrying out these operations; every stage is meticulously looked into and sharpened into a fine art. It's one of the many values we inherited from our parent company, Roops Industries. Within a span of 10 years, Roops Industries expanded its product portfolio to offer more than 450 choices in server and spoon. Yet, each product began its journey of development after a meticulous market research.

With the Kooks range of knives, we nurture the consumer insights with innovative designs, superior craftsmanship and class-leading quality. Like, the steel used in the blades is high carbon hardened surgical steel – the first of its kind in India. The polypropylene and other materials used to make the handles are sourced from reputed suppliers. Our manufacturing team then combines traditional skills with the latest technology to create knives that will easily occupy the pride of place in any modern kitchen.

With each product from the Kooks knife range; you get top-of-the-line cutting power that's safe to use and precise in its operations. In the coming years, Kooks aims to offer a gamut of tools and accessories that will fulfill every possible purpose and suit every possible activity in a modern kitchen.
